2022 Virtual Exhibit Gallery

Last Updated: September 29, 2022 Published: August 29, 2022

Browse virtual exhibitors showcasing products and services for your library.

Explore History Hub, the pioneering crowdsourced community for historical and archival research, managed by the National Archives and Records Administration. Free and open to anyone, History Hub connects researchers, academics, genealogists, historians, and the public with archivists, librarians, and other community experts to identify sources and find the answers to common questions.

GovInfo serves as a one-stop website for authentic, published Government information, and provides free public access to millions of official publications and metadata from all three branches of the Federal Government. GovInfo offers access to documents in a variety of formats. It includes current documents produced and published digitally and also digitized, historical documents going back to 1873.

Publications available in GovInfo include the Congressional Record, Congressional Serial Set, U.S Court Opinions, Bills, Laws, Statutes, U.S. Code,

Another Collection's Treasure: Collecting Government Documents and Government-Issued Materials in Special Collections

Susan Martin, Chair, Collection Development and Management, Middle Tennessee State University
James E. Walker Library, susan.martin@mtsu.edu

Started in 2020, the James E. Walker Library's Distilling, Fermenting, and Brewing Collection supports teaching and research into all aspects of the production and consumption of alcoholic beverage with a focus on Tennessee. This poster will cover our overall collection strategy to obtain Government materials, as well as

Displays as a Digital Depository: Constitution Day Display 2022

Kelly Bilz, Reference & Government Documents Librarian, Thomas More University Benedictine Library, bilzk@thomasmore.edu

Displays are a common—and enjoyable!—tool for engaging with patrons and promoting the library's Government documents collection; however, digital depositories face the obstacle of not having physical materials to display. This poster describes the process of developing a Constitution Day exhibit to fill a display case as a digital depository with only electronic
