MARY ALICE BAISH
Superintendent of Documents

As Assistant Public Printer, Superintendent of Documents, Baish leads the agency in providing public access to Government information published by the U.S. Congress, Federal agencies and the Federal courts. Baish focuses her efforts on the Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP) in cooperation with Congress and GPO's library partners. She also oversees the policy and strategy for GPO's Library Services and Content Management unit, Publication and Information Sales unit and the management of GPO's Federal Digital System (www.fdsys.gov).

Biography

Baish was appointed to this position by Public Printer Bill Boarman in January 2011. Throughout Baish's career, she has worked with all sectors of the library community, testifying before Congressional committees on behalf of GPO, and has been a leading voice in developing electronic systems to disseminate Government information. Prior to GPO, she previously served as the Director of Government Relations for the American Association of Law Libraries (AALL), a nonprofit educational organization that serves the information needs of the legal community. Baish has worked closely with Congressional committees, the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, Federal agencies and the Administration in developing policies and legislation that promote the needs of libraries, the legal community and the American public.

Q1: What did you enjoy most about Government Information Day? (Choose up to three)

Q2: What do you feel could be improved? (Choose up to three)

Q3: How likely would you be to attend Government Information Day in the future?

Well organized with relevant topics!

Q4: Additional Comments:

The planning committee did an awesome job with the first Government Day. You are all rockstars! I really learned a lot about government docs and the different agencies that assist depositories. Kudos on your success!

This was one of the most enjoyable events I've attended in my almost 40 year library career.

I would like to see sessions on government information reference work: types of questions, best web sites, referral channels, ways for non-specialist librarians to keep up to speed on what's going on with government information.

I have mentioned to numerous staff members on how much I enjoyed it. I really liked the panel & their discussions. Passionate people who help Indiana!

I felt that GID was very well run. One of the best conferences I've been to! I loved hearing non-librarian speakers and getting a different perspective on government information. Good job! I look forward to attending next year.
