Implementation of a Digital FDLP: National Collection Service Area Virtual Meetings

Duration: Date Recorded: September 26, 2023

Speakers

- Scott Matheson, Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Publishing Office
- Kate Pitcher, Chief, Federal Depository Support Services, Library Services and Content Management, U.S. Government Publishing Office

Description

In August 2023, the Superintendent of Documents sent all depository library coordinators and directors a letter on the Transformation to a Digital Federal Depository Library Program. Upcoming changes are to be discussed in virtual meetings; with one meeting held in each National Collection Service Area (NCSA). To learn more about NCSA regions, please consult the National Collection Service Areas map, or search for your library's entry in the FDL Directory.

To view the documents referenced in the meeting, consult the Digital FDLP Implementation files, where you can find the following:

Digital FDLP Implementation

Last Updated: September 01, 2023 Published: April 20, 2023

What you need to know:

- It was the consensus of the Task Force that the FDLP can, and should, move to a digital program.
- GPO is designing a phased approach for implementation, as there are a number of significant societal, technical, and legislative matters that require stakeholder engagement and thoughtful consideration. We intend to work with outside change management consultants to increase productivity and efficiency.
- In consultation with our partners, GPO is evaluating and prioritizing key activities in progress for FY23 or scheduled for FY24 and mapping them to the Task Force recommendations.
- Tangible holdings in depository libraries remain an important part of the National Collection. There are no changes to existing FDLP rules and guidance regarding the weeding of paper, microfiche, or other tangible formats from FDLP collections at this time. Information about weeding FDLP collections may be found in Weeding a Depository Collection. Learn more.

What to expect:

- The FDLP Community can expect changes to operations in GPO's Library Services & Content Management (LSCM) that focus on a digital first approach to service.
- LSCM will communicate its progress and keep the FDLP community apprised of changes as they prepare for a new model for the Program.
- The Task Force recommendations impact all LSCM operations. Many of the recommendations are already in progress in LSCM and require only expanding or improving upon tasks and projects underway. Other recommendations will take significant investigation, evaluation, assessment, and planning to implement and operationalize.
- Depository libraries will continue to receive shipments of tangible materials at present.

GPO's Superintendent of Documents, Scott Matheson, is pleased to share a video with you about GPO's implementation of a digital FDLP.

Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP)

The mission of the Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP) is to provide free, ready, and permanent public access to federal government information, now and for future generations. The FDLP was established by Congress and in order to help fulfill its mission the FDLP provides federal information at no cost to designated depository libraries throughout the United States and its territories. CSU Stanislaus became a congressionally designated selective depository library in 1964. As a Federal Depository Library, we provide free access to and reference service for selected publications issued by the federal government. Our Government Documents Collection is located on the first floor of the University Library in the mobile shelving area. Government Documents are shelved according to the Superintendent of Documents (SuDocs) classification. Public access to the government documents collection is guaranteed by public law. (Title 44 United States Code)

- FDLP Basic Collection
Vital sources of information about the workings and essential activities of the U.S. Government such as the Budget of the United States Government, the Federal Register, Economic Indicators, the United States Government Manual, and more!
- FDLP Content
A comprehensive guide describing and pointing to government resources/publications most useful to library users.
- Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP)
The Federal Depository Library Program provides webinars about finding government information, access to LibGuides pertaining to government information sources, and links to online government information resources.
