FDLP Summary

The purpose of the FDLP, in 11 words:

Free, equitable access to Government publications for everyone.
Period.

Development of the FDLP (milestones)

1895 – GPO gets statutory responsibility.

      Basic operating rules are set in law.

1922 – Libraries become an active partner by being required to select what they receive.

1962 – Scope broadened, designation eligibility expanded

1993 – GPO Access Act

From then to now

- In the past we operated on a model that had GPO in an enforcement role. We kept tabs and did remediation.

- As the nature of the products we handle, as well as daily life in libraries, has changed, so has our approach. Now we try to operate such that for every requirement or expectation placed on designated libraries, we offer support and services to help those libraries meet the need and ultimately give good service to the public.

Official Files Digitization

- Digitizing files past & present

- More than 600 files scanned

- About 900 more files to be scanned

- At completion, documents including assessments, biennial surveys, etc. will be available electronically upon request

We really feel that our depository collection is a gold mine

The use of one Item Number card for each publication when selecting has been extremely helpful.

Q&A: FDLP Administration at Your Library

- What do I need to do if there is a new Coordinator?

- What year did my library join the FDLP?

- What can I do if a public patron entered the library saying they wish to use depository resources but are not doing so?

- What is my FDLP password? How do I get it?

- The former Coordinator's contact info appears in FDLP.gov, DSIMS, or the PURL Usage Reporting Tool. How do I change that?

- How can I get some of those cool square pencils or other FDLP promotional materials?

Q&A: Collection Development

- Can GPO provide me with a list of my selections, including item number, title, SuDocs class number, and format?

- How can I figure out if a title has been distributed recently?

- Why hasn't a title been distributed recently if it is 'active' in the List of Classes?

- I want to go all or mostly digital (or my administration wants me to). How does that work?

- How do I know if there is an online equivalent for a tangible item that I want to deselect?

- How do I identify online publications for cataloging?

Q&A: Collection Maintenance

- How do I stop this microfiche? I deselected it ages ago.

- GPO, can you confirm that I can supersede a particular publication?

- Shipments are going to the wrong place. How do I fix it?

- Can I give a superseded publication to another branch library in our system?

- Why do I keep getting shipping lists when we don't get very many paper publications?

Q&A: Collection Maintenance

- Can GPO send me a list of what you shipped to my library over the years?

- I made claims for missing Congressional Record daily pubs some weeks ago. Why haven't they been sent?

- Where is information about the FDLP eXchange?

- How do I access the FDLP eXchange?

- How do I get my eXchange password?

Q&A: Training in the FDLP Academy

- Can I volunteer to present an FDLP Academy webinar?

- I missed a live webinar. Can I still view it?

- How do I get an FDLP Academy Certificate?

- When can I register for the next Coordinator Certificate Program (CCP)?

- What do I do if I want to take the CCP but cannot commit to the 8 week program?
