Tom Rohrig -> All Participants: Congratulations Laura!

James Jacobs -> All Participants: I challenge all FDLP librarians to submit at least 5 unreported documents each month to GPO!

James Jacobs -> All Participants: It's quick and fun. Track your favorite agency(ies) and help build the National Collection!!

Bernadine Hoduski -> All Participants: will any of these be part of serial set

Kelly Seifert -> All Participants: can't you just feel James' enthusiasm?! :)

Jenny Groome -> All Participants: Yay James!

Kate Tallman -> All Participants: Hey James, do you have an easy-to-reference guide to tracking, locating unreported documents, and submitting them to GPO? I know there are lots of presentations on this out there, but if there's one good place to look, I'd love to hear about it :)

Kate Tallman -> All Participants: (And I'm probably not alone!)

Jen Kirk -> All Participants: +1 Kate (proving Kate's point)

James Jacobs -> All Participants: I guess I need to do that ;-).

Aimee Quinn -> All Participants: +2 to Kate's point (although I find unreported material and report them to GPO solely by accident)

Laurie Hall -> All Participants: Thanks to all of the volunteers! We know that there are so many unreported documents out there! It is a daunting task to identify those, the LSCM staff deal with this everyday!

Dominique Hallett -> All Participants: +3 Kate's point

Jenny Groome -> All Participants: +Aimee me too! Still trying to get NPS park to post documents on their site so GPO can harvest. (I get them via email from the NPS park)

James Jacobs -> All Participants: basic steps: 1) find interesting document (news/agency website/twitter announcement etc); 2) Search CGP to see if GPO has it cataloged; 3) if it's NOT in CGP, go to askGPO and fill in the "unreported document" form; 4) rinse and repeat!

Aimee Quinn -> All Participants: Me too Jenny!

Kathy Hale -> All Participants: It was an interesting project.

Aimee Quinn -> All Participants: Thank you Yvonne for all your service and hard work!

Jen Kirk -> All Participants: Thanks, Yvonne for the update and congrats on the working group's completion!

Stephen Parks -> All Participants: Thank you, Yvonne!

Marianne Ryan -> All Participants: Thank you, Yvonne!

Perveen Rustomfram -> All Participants: Thanks for your report, Yvonne and for your work on Council!

James Jacobs -> All Participants: basic steps for finding "unreported documents": 1) find interesting document (news/agency website/twitter announcement etc); 2) Search CGP to see if GPO has it cataloged; 3) if it's NOT in CGP, go to askGPO and fill in the "unreported document" form; 4) rinse and repeat!

Jenny Groome -> All Participants: James - only recent enough documents? Search only CGP and not old MoCat?

James Jacobs -> All Participants: Good question Jenny. I'm most interested in recent born-digital documents. There are of course "unreported" documents in most of our collections, many of which are pre-1976. But the burgeoning problem is exec branch born-digital documents

James Jacobs -> All Participants: IMHO

Kate Tallman -> All Participants: Thanks James :)

Jessica Fomalont -> All Participants: Jenny, if you come across older documents in MoCat, but not in the CGP, by all means, please submit them via AskGPO.

James Jacobs -> All Participants: Please let me know if you're going to take up the challenge of unreported documents. I'm at freegovinfo AT gmail DOT com or @freegovinfo on twitter

James Jacobs -> All Participants: please repeat the question

Aimee Quinn -> All Participants: Jenny and James - I find materials in my research or when I am working with faculty or students which appear to be a government publication. I search in CGP and if it is not there, I look in the old MoCat. If it is really old, I use the 1909 checklist or other print tools. If I find it there and confirm it is a govpub, then I send it to GPO. Sometimes I send it to confirm it was indeed a depository document or something out of scope at the time.

Jenny Groome -> All Participants: I was told to remember to bring this up again - when a change comes, cataloguers have to update records and reference/instruction librarians have to update research guides. So it doubles the work. It would be great to be able to use a find and replace tool.

James Jacobs -> All Participants: good question. How I wish the serial set was still a bound thing

Aimee Quinn -> All Participants: +1 James

Jenny Groome -> All Participants: +2 James

Megan Minta -> All Participants: Some executive branch annual reports were congressionally mandated, and were included in the Serial Set

James Jacobs -> All Participants: that's a good research question to compare the House Document of congressionally mandated reports with documents in the serial set

James Jacobs -> All Participants: that House Doc is published at the beginning of each Congressional session

Aimee Quinn -> All Participants: Great work being done by all the working groups!

Kate Tallman -> All Participants: Thanks Robbie!

Cindy Etkin -> All Participants: Report publications to GPO: <https://www.fdlp.gov/collection-tools/reporting-pubs>

Ronnie Joiner -> All Participants: That will be helpful!

Chris Brown -> All Participants: the practice of including selected Executive Branch materials in the Serial Set ended in 1957

Kris Abery -> All Participants: A template for submitting unreported documents would be helpful

Bernadine Hoduski -> All Participants: in the beginning all reports to congress were included in ss - later some were not included - we could still get paper bound sets for libraies that want it - the law saying all libraies can get it has not been changed - technology makes sets cheaper to produce

Katie Lewis -> All Participants: James, you say "the burgeoning problem is exec branch born-digital documents" . Would things like Exec branch Secratary resignation letters be candidates to be cataloged?
