

GPO AND DEPOSITORY LIBRARIES PARTNER TO OFFER ONLINE REFERENCE ASSISTANCE

The U.S. Government Printing Office (GPO) joins the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) and Federal Depository Libraries around the country to provide an online reference service to the American public.

“Government Information Online: Ask a Librarian” (administered by UIC for the Committee on Institutional Cooperation) allows the public to ask questions over e-mail or real-time chat.

GIO is supported by public, academic, and state depository libraries throughout the country.

WANT TO PARTICIPATE?

Contact John Shuler at Alfred@uic.edu

FEDERAL DEPOSITORY LIBRARIES CURRENTLY PARTICIPATING:

Indiana University

Penn State University

University of Hawaii at Manoa

Library of Virginia

Purdue University

University of Illinois, Chicago

Michigan State University

San Francisco Public Library

University of Illinois, Urbana

Newark Public Library

State Library of Pennsylvania

University of Iowa

Northwestern University

Ohio State University

Southern Illinois University

Tennessee State Library

University of Minnesota

University of Missouri

University of Massachusetts, Amherst

*“This service enables GPO and the depository libraries to help Americans answer questions about their democracy...”
said Ric Davis,
Acting
Superintendent of Documents.*

Partner With GPO!

GPO and the DLC share a common vision of serving users at their point of need.

Giving the public what they need, when they need it, from where they are is becoming increasingly important.

GPO wants you!

GPO is interested in collaborating with other depository libraries to provide "point of need" access to Federal information. If you would like to propose such a partnership, please submit a partnership inquiry form to GPO at:

<<http://www.fdlp.gov/partnerships/inquiry.html>>

Learn about GPO's other successful collaborations on the FDLP Desktop at <<http://www.fdlp.gov/partnerships/about.html>>. GPO's partnerships represent how depository libraries are focusing on services to provide access to government information. Join us!