

FDLP Desktop

Fall DLC, October 2007

More Than Just Another Password

The FDLP Desktop has moved to a new domain - fdlp.gov. The new Desktop is designed to be an online interactive community. Interactive elements are accessed through individual user accounts. Currently user accounts are limited to Federal depository coordinators. Registration will open to the full community in November 2007.

Your password enables you to:

- Subscribe to FDLP Express and get only the news you want right to your inbox.
- Order promotional items to showcase your status as a Federal depository library.
- Register (or unregister) for FDLP events and conferences online.
- Weed and enhance your collections through the Needs & Offers service. Currently in beta mode only.
- Share events and news from your library.
- Stay informed of community events with our event calendar.
- Create and customize your individual profile and enhance your community outreach. Your profile features include private messaging, buddy list, registered events, and Needs & Offers ads.

More features will be unleashed in the coming months.

Rich Internet applications take FDL tools to the next level

We've built the desktop to conform to Web standards while ensuring privacy, security, and reliability.

Meanwhile we are migrating relevant information from the old Desktop to the new Desktop. This is a slow and deliberate process. We welcome suggestions as we continue to improve the site.

Content has been restructured to make getting the information you need easily available. News is dynamically updated.

Take advantage of current rich Internet applications to network with fellow librarians, submit library events, submit to Needs & Offers, order FDL promotional items, and participate in surveys to name a few.

- Restructured and reorganized content. Find what you need with our new organizational structure and live search.
- Data driven. News you can use with up-to-date Program content.
- Simplicity. Getting you what you need to meet your busy schedule.
- Social networking. Interact with GPO and your fellow librarians.
- Customization. Express yourself with your individual profile while unleashing the power of Web-based tools (e.g., forms) and enhanced community outreach (e.g., private messaging).
